Tony Robbins Mindset Training For Health and Wellness Professionals

Course Description

Discover your next level with Tony Robbins' Top National Trainer. Tony's elite group of National Trainers advise and consult with Fortune 500 companies, executives, managers and sales professionals in the areas of Peak Performance, leadership, organizational behavior, psychology of achievement and sales.

"Success is 80% psychology and 20% mechanics. My team of Peak Performance Strategists will show you how to turn your average producers into superstars."

- Tony Robbins

During this event you will improve your performance by integrating a three-step process for creating lasting change and clearly identifying what is holding you back from reaching your true potential by closing the gap between where you are and where you want to be.

Learning Objectives

- Discuss the DRIVING FORCES that impact every decision you make in your life
- Learn Tony's top tool for generating MOMENTUM so that you can get to where you want to go NOW
- Identify the chokeholds that are holding you back from producing the results you want in your business and personal life
- Learn how to create an UNSHAKEABLE MINDSET, so that no matter what is happening in the external world; you can always produce results
- What could you achieve at your PEAK?

"I loved Bill's energy. His enthusiasm is contagious! He trained my team for two hours on how to own their role as a key contributor to the overall success of the team while taking the time to help them become conscious of the limiting beliefs and habits that have been holding them back from getting the results they want in their personal lives. Two thumbs up!"- Dr. Charlie C.

Headaches: To Adjust or Not to Adjust...That is the Question

Course Description

Although 15% of Americans are currently under care of a chiropractor, most Americans know Chiropractic care for reducing pain with a non-pharmacological approach in 2 major areas: low back pain and headaches. Did you know that more people suffer from migraine headaches than diabetes + asthma combined in this country?

This class takes a hands-on approach for chiropractic attendees to widen their consideration of diagnosis when this very common symptom is presented. Attendees will be able to better avoid medical treatment errors when they are looking for red flags that this multifaceted approach considers.

Learning Objectives

- Differentiate a musculoskeletal headache and head pain caused from other areas of imbalance
- Recognize red flags alerting a chiropractor NOT to adjust, but instead: refer out, or order other imaging
- Introduce treatment options other than manipulation
- Garner further knowledge of current research supporting headaches

An Integrative Approach to Concussions, Played on the Field of Life

Course Description

Many are familiar with concussion diagnosis when sports are involved. But few think of concussions when witnessing falls on the park, in the airport, at the grocery store, or at home. As chiropractors ARE seeing AND TREATING concussed patients, do we know the ethical boundaries in place when witnessing, diagnosing, treating these injuries? Micky Collins published this article in 2016 that looked at concussion approaches from a multidisciplinary perspective in which he referenced his 6 subtypes of concussion: 1. Migraine (+ Autonomic and Sleep), 2. Affective (Mood), 3. Cognitive, 4. Cervical, 5. Oculomotor/Vision, 6. Vestibular Attendees will learn what a concussed individual goes through from the time they get injured until they are diagnosed. As well, all chiropractors will be reminded of how each discipline looks at and has the authority to treat concussion through their scope.

Learning Objectives

- Identify concussion in one of the six subtypes
- Differentiate your scope of practice when in the office, in public area, in Athletic Team of High School or College Programs
- Demonstrate one diagnostic test that can be used to quickly identify a concussed individual

Chiropractic physicians are focused daily on increasing health and mobility in patients. 3rd party payors are focused daily on reducing risk of their insured, to have the highest outcomes for the patient population. This course is designed to increase patient safety, reduce risk with payors by correctly analyzing data collected from each individual office and create practice specific predictable risk. These instructors will demonstrate, with the use of technology, how this process will yield happier-healthier patients, higher patient volume, and higher reimbursements.

Learning Objectives

- Leveraging technology to care for high risk patients
- How to improve outcomes and reduce risk using technology to engage patients where they are...On their phones
- Reducing risk of pandemic 2.0 by implementation of technology

Women in the US make approximately 80% of the health care decisions for their families, yet often go without health care coverage themselves. Simultaneously many chiropractors are uncomfortable adjusting female concerns outside of headaches, low back or extremity pain. With females having such a large influence on healthcare choices for their families, we need to make sure chiropractors are comfortable in discussing, diagnosing, and adjusting issues related to only females. This lecture is designed to provide new and innovative techniques to handle thoracic pain in females, pelvic constipation, PMS, and pelvic disorder. Having top-of-mind access to different ways of treatments will help avoid risk and provide confidence in the best way to naturally heal. During our 2 hours together, we will break up into 3 groups and provide hands-on demonstration and training.

Wilk V. AMA: How spies, Documentation, Secret Sources and Determination Saved Chiropractic

Course Description

Learn what you don't know about the struggle for parity, seen through the lens of chiropractic history and why you can't coast now. Anyone who graduated after 1992 doesn't know that we are where we are today because of what happened then. Look back to see how the chiropractic profession took on the AMA, changing the profession and access to chiropractic care. Quantum change is coming with the transition to value-based care, which will present challenges in the future to ensure inclusion and parity as healthcare continues to change. Chiropractors learning from the past will be better prepared for the challenges of the future.

Learning Objectives

- Contrast the public's access to chiropractic care prior to and following the Wilk v. AMA litigation
- Discuss the impact of the litigation on opportunities for chiropractors and chiropractic students
- Apply the lessons of the past on current and future challenges facing the chiropractic profession

MUST KNOW BILLING AND CODING REQUIREMENTS: The No Surprises Act and Billing LBP X-Rays -Update from Florida Blue

Course Description

The Course will instruct attendees on the No Surprises Act (NSA), a January 1st, 2022, law impacting physicians who treat uninsured or self-pay patients. The law is mandatory and applies to most physicians. The presenters will teach attendees how to get through the NSA, including the Good Faith Estimate required for these patients. Next, the NCQA HEDIS measures are having a burgeoning impact on all disciplines. Florida Blue has incorporated the NCQA HEDIS measures for low back pain patients. For the first time, the FCA is hosting Florida Blue's FEP Senior Medical Director, Dr. Maria Flaquer, MD, to teach attendees about the NCQA's HEDIS measure and its documentation and coding impact on x-rays for low back pain.
